

UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT
WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON

In re:

MARSHA KAY MCMAHON-JONES and,
TOMMY ANDREW JONES,

Debtors.

Case No. 09-017928-KAO

ABC SUN CONTROL, INC.,

Plaintiff,

vs.

MARSHA KAY MCMAHON-JONES and
TOMMY ANDREW JONES,

Defendants.

Adversary No. 09-01514-KAO

DECISION

This matter comes before the Court upon Plaintiff ABC Sun Control's "Complaint for Denial of Dischargeability of Debt" [AP#1]. ABC provided custom made awning and window covering materials to American Awning and Shade Inc., a business in which the Defendants Marsha K. McMahon-Jones and Tommy Jones held an interest. In the course of the parties' dealings the Defendants guaranteed the obligation of American Awning to ABC. American Awning went out of business leaving a substantial obligation owing to ABC. The Defendants filed for bankruptcy relief under Chapter 7. ABC file this adversary complaint objecting to the Defendants' discharge of their obligations to ABC pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 523 and seeking denial of the Defendants' discharge pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 727(a).

1 JURISDICTION

2 This Court has jurisdiction of this matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(a). This adversary
3 proceeding is a core matter pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 157(b)(2)(I) & (J).

4 FACTS

5 The facts and events that are the subject of this adversary proceeding are extensive and 6 complex. The Court in its decision will make reference to documents in the Court's main case
7 docket (Doc __), adversary case docket (AP __), exhibits offered by the Plaintiff (§ X __), and 8 exhibits offered by the Defendants (Δ X __). The Court will start with a chronological review of 9 the facts.

10 1. Marsha McMahon-Jones and Tommy Jones were husband and wife.

11 2. T. Jones Enterprises, LLC., was a Washington Limited Liability Company which was filed
12 with the State on April 17, 2000. (§ X23 p.3) Its governing person/member was Tommy Jones. It
13 was engaged in the retail shade and awning business. By 2004, it was operating four Budget Blinds
14 franchises in the Seattle area.

15 3. Marsha McMahon-Jones wished to go into the high end custom shade business. Tommy 16 Jones consulted with his franchiser Budget Blinds to ensure that his wife's involvement in this 17 custom high end business would not violate Tommy's agreement with Budget Blinds. After he 18 received such assurances, Marsha McMahon-Jones commenced doing business under the name of 19 American Awnings & Shade. AA&S operated out of one of the Budget Blind franchise locations.
20 Tommy Jones, was also employed by AA&S.

21 4. Marsha McMahon- Jones signed an application dated July 24, 2004, seeking credit from 22 ABC Sun Control Inc., a manufacturer of custom made to order shades and window coverings. (§ 23 X17). This application included a personal guarantee. Mr. Jones did not sign this application or 24 guarantee being concerned about violating the terms of his franchise agreement with Budget Blinds.
25 AA&S placed its first order for merchandise from ABC on August 10, 2004. (§ X21 p. 1).

26 5. During the year 2004, American Awning & Shades did $64,440.00 of business with ABC.

27
28 DECISION
July 22, 2011

1 At the end of 2004, AA&S owed ABC $24,674.00.

2 6. American Awnings & Shades Inc., was incorporated as a Washington Corporation filed on 3 April 22, 2005. Its president and registered agent was Marsha McMahon-Jones. (§ X23 p.1). During 4 the year 2005, American Awning did $263,259.00 of business with ABC. At the end of 2005,
5 AA&S owed ABC $26,730.00.

6 7. During the year 2006, AA&S did $580,062.00 of business with ABC. At the end of 2006,
7 AA&S owed ABC $39,487.00.

8 8. During the year 2007, AA&S did $672,949.00 of business with ABC. During this year,
9 the Defendants and AA&S were the focus of collection activities for a substantial obligation to the 10 IRS. At the end of 2007, AA&S owed ABC $238,294.00.

11 9. ABC became concerned about the growing balance in July of 2007. ABC's president, Mr.
12 Smallwood met with the Jones during that month. After that discussion, Mr. Smallwood concluded 13 that ABC needed security for the delinquent balance.

14 10. About this time Marsha McMahon-Jones got out of the day-to-day management of 15 AA&S which was taken over by Tommy Jones. She started a career as a realtor. (§ X20). From 16 about this time Marsha McMahon-Jones had little involvement in the operations and management of 17 AA&S.

18 11. On October 8, 2007, the Jones listed their waterfront residence with relators specializing 19 in high end waterfront reality. (Δ X19). The Defendants relied upon the advice of their experienced 20 realtors in listing the residence for $2,395,000.00.

21 12. In the fall of 2007, Mr. Smallwood met with the Jones once again. At this meeting he 22 presented them with a promissory note in the sum of $230,000.00 and a deed of trust on their 23 waterfront residence securing said note. At the time of the preparation of the note and deed of trust, 24 Mr. Smallwood was aware that the residence was listed for sale at about $2,500,000.00. He had 25 visited the home and did not doubt its value. A note and deed of trust dated December 5, 2007 were 26 executed by the Jones. (§ X18 and § X19). The deed of trust was recorded on December 6, 2007.

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 The note by its terms provided for payment of $1,533.33 per month with balance of the note and all
2 accrued interest due in full on November 30, 2008. The note bears interest at the rate of 8%.
3 ($1,533.33 per month). Mr. Smallwood testified that it took a number of contacts with the Jones
4 before they signed the documents.

5 13. In early 2008, three of the Budget Blinds franchises were sold. The Defendants 6 deposited $215,000.00 of the purchase price in their personal account. (§ X16 p.7). A check for 7 $100,000.00 was drawn on this account to pay off a Budget Blinds line of credit. (§ X16 p. 8; Δ X
8 p.74). The remaining balance of the purchase price was to be paid in monthly installments of 9 $3,794.39 per month with the first installment received June 3, 2008. (Δ X11 p.74). T. Jones
10 Enterprises, LLC., was administratively dissolved on April 30, 2008. (§ X23 p.3). There is mention
11 that the T. Jones Enterprises, LLC., was “merged” with AA&S as of June 1, 2008. (§ X1 p.29).
12 There is no evidence that the merger was ever actually formally accomplished. Budget Blinds and 13 AA&S continued to keep separate books and records thru August 31, 2009. (Δ X 2,3,5,6,8,9,11 &
14 12). The remaining Budget Blinds franchise continued operation at the business location which it
15 shared with AA&S.

16 14. ABC continued to do business with AA&S after the execution of the note and deed of 17 trust. During the year 2008 and early 2009, ABC sold to AA&S on essentially a cash basis. During 18 the period December 18, 2007 thru April 2, 2009, ABC sold goods to AA&S invoiced at 19 $410,383.74 and received payments from AA&S of $383,387.27. Based on these figures the debt of 20 AA&S to ABC increased by the sum of $26,996.47, in the period from December 2008 to the 21 beginning of April 2009. ABC also billed 13 charges of $1,533.33, the monthly payments due per 22 the note during this period. (§ X21 p. 33 to p. 42).

23 15. AA&S’s bank account was the subject of a tax levy on April 7, 2009. (§ X10 p. 22).
24 When AA&S’s checks were not honored, ABC ceased selling goods to AA&S. (§ X 21 p. 42).

25 16. AA&S was administratively dissolved by the State of Washington on April 30, 2009. (§ 26 X 23 p.1).

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 17. Awnings by Design, LLC., was filed with the State of Washington on April 30, 2009. Its 2 governing member and registered agent was Tommy Jones. Awnings by Design engaged in 3 essentially the same business as AA&S and operated in the AA&S location. Awnings by Design was 4 administratively dissolved by the State on April 30, 2010. (¶ X23 p.2). Tommy Jones continued
5 conducting this business at the same location under the name Awnings by Design to the time of the 6 trial of this matter. (¶ X 23 p.2).

7 18. On August 6, 2009, Marsha Kay McMahon-Jones and Tommy Andrew Jones filed for 8 relief under chapter 7 of the Bankruptcy Code.

9 19. ABC filed this adversary proceeding objecting to discharge of Defendants' obligations to 10 ABC and objecting to the granting to the Defendants of a discharge in this case.

11 DISCUSSION

12 I. 11 U.S.C. §523(a)(2)(A)

13 ABC bases a cause of action against the Defendants on 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2)(A). It alleges 14 that the Defendants' obligation to it was as a result of "false pretenses, a false representation, or 15 actual fraud." This breaks down into two allegations: (1) the Defendants' purchased goods from 16 ABC with no intention to pay and; (2) that ABC's decision to refinance was induced by Defendants' 17 fraud.

18 A. Incurring Debt With No Intent to Pay

19 The Defendants wanted to start a business selling custom shades and window coverings.
20 Because of potential problems with an existing franchiser, Marsha McMahon-Jones was to be the 21 owner of the business. Tommy Jones, who was involved in the business as well, negotiated a deal
22 with ABC to manufacture product for the new business. ABC required that Marsha McMahon-Jones
23 sign a guarantee of the obligations to ABC. Purchases began in August 2004. Marsha operated
24 under the name American Awnings & Shade for a period of time prior to its incorporation on April 25 22, 2005.

26 AA&S dealings with ABC were within acceptable debt limits for the years 2004 thru 2006.

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 AA&S began having trouble paying its obligations in 2007. The Defendants were dealing with a 2 substantial IRS obligation by the end of June 2007. AA&S' balance payable to ABC had risen to 3 over $200,000.00. ABC's President, Mr. Smallwood was nervous about the growing payable. Mr.
4 Smallwood met with the Defendants and had a number of other contacts with them attempting to 5 collateralize AA&S's debt to ABC. On December 5, 2007, the Defendants signed a $230,000.00
6 note and deed of trust on their residence, collateralizing the outstanding balance owed to ABC.
7 AA&S had done $672,949.00 of business with ABC during 2007.

8 In the period December 2007 to April 2009, the pattern of dealings between AA&S and 9 ABC, suggest a cash in advance practice. A review of the parties transactions from that period
10 indicates purchases of $410,383.74 with payments by AA&S of $383,387.27, purchases exceeding 11 payments by $26,996.47. Although the account receivable balance on ABC's books increased more
12 than that amount that is the result of interest/note payments added to the account. ABC terminated 13 its sales to AA&S when a number of checks were returned. This coincided with a tax levy made on 14 the AA&S bank account.

15 The dealings between the Defendants, AA&S and ABC for the periods 2004 thru 2006, and 16 December 2007 thru April 2009, do not support ABC's allegation that these debts were incurred with 17 no intention of repayment.

18 The increase of the AA&S account payable balance during the year 2007, coincide with the 19 Defendants' IRS problems and the beginning of a general economic downturn. Upon ABC's 20 request, the Defendants collateralized the obligation and entered into terms to satisfy it. The 21 Defendants' performance post December 2007 supports their position that they were attempting to 22 continue business operations and satisfy their obligations to ABC. Their failure in that regard is 23 attributable to poor business judgment, poor personal judgment and adverse economic conditions, 24 rather than fraudulent intent. The Plaintiff has not met its burden of proof on its contention that the 25 Defendants incurred debt to ABC without intent to pay.

26 B. Refinance Based on Defendants' Fraud

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1                   1.     Misrepresentation of the Value of Collateral

2                   ABC argues when it accepted the Defendants' 12/5/07 note and mortgage, it relied upon the 3 Defendants' knowingly false representations as to the value of their residence.

4                   ABC became concerned about AA&S's large account payable by July of 2007, when 5 Mr. Smallwood visited with the Defendants about the outstanding obligation. Mr. Smallwood
6 concluded that ABC needed additional collateral to insure payment.

7                   At about this time the Defendants were considering listing their residence for sale. The Jones
8 sought the expertise of two experienced realtors specializing in high end waterfront homes. Relying 9 on their realtors' analysis, the Defendants' residence was ultimately listed for sale at a price of 10 $2,395,000.00 in the fall of 2007. (Δ X19). A price that the Defendants believed was reasonable in 11 light of the then current real estate market.

12                  Mr. Smallwood, who was evidently aware of the listing, requested the Defendants sign a note
13 and deed of trust on their residence to secure ABC's obligation. Mr. Smallwood had previously 14 visited the Defendants' home and did not find the listing price unreasonable. After some delay, on 15 December 5, 2007, the Defendants ultimately decided to sign the note and mortgage presented to 16 them by ABC's lawyer.

17                  The Defendants' listed their residence at an asking price of $2,395,000.00 in reasonable
18 reliance upon the expert advice of their relators. They believed that was a reasonable value at the 19 time of their listing the property. In early 2008, the relators advised that in light of the dramatic 20 downturn in the real estate market the home should be removed from the market. Accepting this 21 advice the Defendants cancelled their listing.

22                  The Defendants did not intentionally misrepresent the value of their home to ABC nor did 23 they improperly remove the property from the market.

24                   2.     Representation that ABC Would be Paid From the Proceeds of the Sale of the 25                                 Budget Blinds Franchise

26                  ABC also contends in support of its § 523(a)(2)(A) contentions, that the Defendants should

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 have used the proceeds of the sale of the Budget Blinds franchises to payoff ABC.

2 The Budget Blinds franchises were operated by T. Jones Enterprises, LLC., doing business as 3 Budget Blinds of Seattle & the Eastside. Budget Blinds did not owe anything to ABC nor was ABC
4 granted a security interest in the franchises. Budget Blinds' December 31, 2007, balance sheet
5 reveals that it was hopelessly insolvent, with total liabilities of $579,702.11, greatly exceeding its 6 $81,371.52 of total assets. (Δ X p.1).

7 Mr. Smallwood testified that the Defendants had promised to use the franchise proceeds to 8 pay ABC. The Jones denied making any such promise. The existence of such a promise has not 9 been proved.

10 ABC has failed to meet its burden of proof on its § 523(a)(2)(A) contentions.

11 II. 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(4)

12 ABC bases one count of its complaint against the Defendants on §523(a)(4). This provision 13 bars discharge of a debt "for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity, embezzlement 14 or larceny;" ABC alleges the Defendants breached their fiduciary duties as corporate officers and 15 employees of AA&S, by taking excess compensation, paying personal expenses with corporate 16 funds, and preferring creditors while AA&S was insolvent.

17 A. Were Defendants "Fiduciaries?"

18 The Court must examine the definition of fiduciary in § 523(a)(4). "...[T]he broad general 19 definition of fiduciary relationship involving confidence, trust and good faith is inapplicable in the 20 dischargeability content, ordinary commercial relationships are excluded from the reach of § 21 523(a)(4)." In re Short, 818 F.2d 693, 695 (9th Cir. 1987). The term "fiduciary" as used in §
22 523(a)(4) is a question of federal law and is narrowly construed. In re Kallmeyer, 242 B.R. 492, 495
23 (9th Cir. BAP 1999); Ragsdale v. Haller, 780 F.2d 794, 796 (9th Cir. 1986). Only the fiduciary 24 duties of a trustee fall within § 523(a)(4). In re Hultquist, 101 B.R. 180, 185 (9th Cir. BAP 1989),
25 where the Court, applying Washington law, found that although the debtor as a corporate officer
26 owed a general fiduciary duty, § 523(a)(4) was not applicable to his actions because there was no

1 trust. Corporate officers' fiduciary duties are that of an agent, rather than that of a trustee of
2 corporate assets. In re Cantrell, 329 F.3d 1119, 1127 (9th Cir. 2003); In re Honkanen, 446 B.R. 373
3 (9th Cir. BAP 2011); In re Gray, (9th Cir. BAP No. AZ-10-1304-MkMaD 07/07/11). Inclusion
4 within the term "acting in a fiduciary capacity" requires a finding that one is a trustee of a trust,
5 "express" or "statutory," Hultquist, 101 B.R. at 185, or by common law rule. Kallmeyer, 242 B.R.
6 at 496. All the above authorities agreed that state law is determinative as to whether corporate 7 fiduciary duties are those of a trustee.

8 ABC must show as a condition requisite to prevailing under § 523(a)(4) that the Defendants 9 violated their fiduciary duties as a trustee under Washington law.

10 B. Is There a Trust?

11 The evidence does not support the existence of either an express trust nor a trust created by 12 statute. ABC contends that a trust exists under the common law trust fund doctrine.

13 1. The Trust Fund Doctrine- General

14 The Court starts its discussion of this topic with references to the authoritative treatise, 15A
15 William Meade Fletcher, Fletcher Cyclopedia of the Law of Corporations (2011), which provides:

16 § 7369 The trust fund doctrine in general

17 Perhaps no concept has created as much confusion in the field of corporate 18 law as has the "trust fund doctrine." A number of cases have stated that under the 19 trust fund doctrine, the capital stock of a corporation, or the assets of an insolvent 20 corporation representing its capital stock, is a trust fund for the benefit of the 21 corporation's creditors.

22 The doctrine has been widely criticized and, as defined above, has been 23 repudiated. In no case applying the doctrine has an actual trust ever been impressed 24 upon the specific assets of either a solvent or an insolvent corporation, 25 ...

26 The theory of the trust fund doctrine is that all of the assets of a corporation, 27 immediately on its becoming insolvent, exists for the benefit of all of its creditors and 28 that thereafter no liens or rights can be created either voluntarily or by operation of law whereby one creditor is given an advantage over others.

DECISION

July 22, 2011

Fletcher notes the doctrine is applied after a court of equity has taken jurisdiction of the property.

§7373 Modern Status of trust fund doctrine

Courts have noted that the trust fund doctrine is rather a trust in the administration of the assets after possession by a court of equity than a trust attaching to the property, as such, for the direct benefit of either creditor or stockholder.

2. Washington's "Trust Fund Doctrine"

The "trust fund doctrine" was first articulated by a Washington court in the case of Thompson v. Huron Lumber Co., 4 Wash. 600, 30 P.741 (1892). In Thompson, the receiver of an insolvent corporation sought to set aside a preferential mortgage given just weeks before the initiation of the receivership. The holder of the mortgage argued it was permissible for insolvent corporations to make preferences. The court in voiding the mortgage said in part, "But we cannot lose sight of the settled rule concerning the property of insolvent corporations, that it is a trust fund for creditors,..." 4 Wash. at 604-605, 30 P. at 742. This ruling became the law of the State of Washington as articulated in Benner v. Scandiavian American Bank, 73 Wash. 488, 497, 131 P. 1149, 1152 (1913);

In this state it is the rule that a domestic corporation cannot after insolvency prefer its creditors; but, on the contrary, its property is from thenceforth regarded as a trust fund for the benefit of all its creditors, and any transfers or mortgages thereof after insolvency, which have the effect of preferring one creditor over another, are void.

This trust fund doctrine was not part of the common law of England but nevertheless became the common law of Washington. Sterrett v. White Pine Sash Co., 176 Wash. 663, 665, 30 P.2d 665, 667 (1934). The Doctrine as articulated made good faith and lack of knowledge of insolvency immaterial to recovery of preferences. Ibid.

3. Statutory Modification of the Trust Fund Doctrine

This broad application of the "trust fund doctrine" began to be limited by legislation in

July 22, 2011

1 important ways. The Washington Laws of 1931, c. 47 p. 160, limited the time in which a receiver
2 could bring a preference action to 6 months post appointment, it limited the preferences recoverable
3 to those which occurred within 4 months prior to the appointment of the receiver, and it required
4 proof that the recipient had reasonable cause to believe it was receiving a preference. If the transfer 5 met these criteria the resulting preference was voidable by the receiver.

6 In 1941, the Legislature once again visited this area and specifically made reference to the 7 trust fund doctrine when it enacted RCW 23.72.030 (Laws of 1941, Ch 103) which provided:

8 Any preference made or suffered within four months before the date of application for 9 the appointment of a receiver may be avoided and the property or its value recovered 10 by such a receiver, if the person receiving the preference or to be benefitted thereby or 11 his agent acting therein shall then have reasonable cause to believe that the debtor
12 corporation is insolvent. No preference made or suffered prior to such four months'
13 period may be recovered, and all provisions of law or of the trust fund doctrine 14 permitting recovery of any preference made beyond such four months' period are 15 hereby specifically superseded. (emphasis added)

13 The court in Block v. Olympic Health Spa, Inc., 24 Wash.App 938, 950 FN 5, 604 P.2d 1317, 1324
14 FN5, (1979) said the trust fund doctrine had been abrogated.

15 ABC argues that RCW 23.72.030 has been repealed by the Laws of 2004 ch. 165, therefore 16 the Washington common law trust fund doctrine was reinstated as the law of the state. The two 17 Washington Courts that have referenced this argument are inconclusive. In re Underwood, 2004 WL
18 5607954 (Bkry E.D. WA 2004); GMAC, LLC v. Hiatt Pontiac GMC Trucks Inc., 2009 WL 4730838
19 (Dist. Ct. W.D. WA 2009).

20 The legislation relied upon by ABC was part of a comprehensive rewriting of the Washington
21 Receivership Statutes. The Court will examine the implications of that legislation for the trust fund 22 doctrine.

23 4. The 2004 Receivership Legislation

24 The repeal of RCW 23.72.030 is part of Chapter 165 of the Laws of 2004, which rewrote the 25 Washington Receivership Statute RCW 7.60.005.300. As a result of Chapter 165 and its repeal of 26 RCW 23.72.030 there is no statutory basis for receivers of insolvent corporations to recover

1 preferences. Did the Legislature thereby intend to eliminate recovery of corporate preferences under 2 state law entirely or did they intend to dramatically expand their use by returning to Washington's 3 common law trust fund doctrine as it existed prior to 1931?

4 The trust fund doctrine in Washington arose out of the desire by the courts to provide the 5 receiver of an insolvent corporation means by which transfers which benefitted one party to the 6 detriment of the remaining creditors could be recovered and distributed equitably. It did this by 7 declaring that the corporate officers become trustees of the corporate assets when the corporation
8 became insolvent. Transfers made in violation of the trust were void. The common law provided no
9 defense to the receivers actions either in timeliness or the good faith of the recipient. This created
10 injustices which the Legislature sought to remedy by limiting the harsh results of the common law
11 rule. Accordingly in 1931 the preference law was greatly limited by providing time limitations and a 12 good faith defense. Preferences became voidable as opposed to void. Preferences even to corporate 13 officers could be upheld by the courts if they could withstand close scrutiny as fair and equitable.
14 GMAC v. Hiatt; 2009 WL 4730838; Block v. Olympic Health Spa, 24 Wash at 948-49, 604 P.2d at 15 1124-25; Tacoma Ass'n of Credit Men v. Lester, 72 Wash.2d 453, 433 P.2d 901 (1967). The law
16 thus became cognizant of these economic realities and softened the harsh consequences of the rule.
17 Is it likely that Legislature intended to return to the harsh rule applicable a century ago when it 18 repealed the corporate preference law as it revised the Receivership Statute?

19 The Receivership Statute was revised to encourage the use of state court receiverships.
20 Secured creditors will now commonly seek to place a debtor in receivership so that they may use that 21 forum to safely conduct realization on their collateral under the supervision of a court. The 22 receivership now operates under specific statutory authority in areas which were previously 23 undefined. As an incentive to make the Receivership Statute more attractive to secured creditors, the 24 legislature repealed the corporate preference provision, which were often a disincentive for the 25 secured creditor to institute a receivership as a result of the adverse impact the preference provisions
26 might have on its position. Return to the harsh common law rule would be a great disincentive for

1 use of the Receivership Statute by secured creditors. One suspects this would be a great surprise to 2 the people that proposed the legislation and the legislature that passed it.

3 The Court must consider whether this rather illogical interpretation is consistent with the 4 other provisions of Washington's corporate law.

5 5. Washington's Corporate Statutory Scheme

6 Washington has over the years enacted comprehensive legislation on the subject of 7 corporations.

8 In 1965, the Washington legislature adopted the Washington Business Corporations
9 Act (WBCA), Laws of 1965, ch. 53, which was based largely on the national Model
Business Corporation Act.

10 In 1984, the national Model Business Corporation Act was revised in response to 11 extensive comment throughout the country. In 1989, the Washington legislature 12 substantially revised the WBCA, Laws of 1989, ch. 165, to incorporate many provisions of the national 1984 Revised Model Business Corporation Act (Model Act).

14 146 P.3d 914, 923 (2006).

16 One must look to the extent the statutory provisions interpret the common law.

18 A statute abrogates the common law if the provisions of the statute are so inconsistent 19 with and repugnant to the common law that both cannot simultaneously be in force.

28 July 22, 2011

1 B.14.050 Effects of Dissolution which provides in part:

2 (1) A dissolved corporation continues its corporate existence but may not 3 carry on any business except that appropriate to wind up and liquidate its business and 4 affairs, including:

(a) Collecting assets;

4 (b) Disposing of its properties that will be applied toward satisfaction or 5 making reasonable provision for satisfaction of its liabilities or will otherwise not be 6 distributed in kind to its shareholders, but in any case subject to applicable liens and 7 security interests as well as any applicable contractual restrictions on the disposition
8 of its properties;

(c) Satisfying or making reasonable provision for satisfying its liabilities, in 7 accordance with their priorities as established by law, and on a pro rata basis within 8 each class of liabilities;

(d) Subject to the limitations imposed by RCW 23B.06.400, distributing its remaining 9 property among its shareholders according to their interests; and

(e) Doing every other act necessary to wind up and liquidate its business and 10 affairs.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this chapter, dissolution of a corporation 11 does not:

(a) Transfer title to the corporation's property;

12 (b) Prevent transfer of its shares or securities, although the authorization to 13 dissolve may provide for closing the corporation's share transfer records;

(c) Subject its directors or officers to standards of conduct different from those 14 prescribed in chapter 23B.08.RCW;

(d) Change quorum or voting requirements for its board of directors or 15 shareholders; change provisions for selection, resignation, or removal of its directors 16 or officers or both; or change provisions for amending its bylaws;

(e) Prevent commencement of a proceeding by or against the corporation in its 17 corporate name;

(f) Abate or suspend a proceeding pending by or against the corporation on the 18 effective date of dissolution; or

(g) Terminate the authority of the registered agent of the corporation.

18 ...

19 (emphasis added)

20 The above underscored provisions are inconsistent with the common law trust fund doctrine.
21 Section (2)(a) provides that there is no transfer of title of the corporation property. The corporation
22 property remains its own, not transferred into a trust. Even more convincingly, section (2)(c)
23 provides that the duties of its directors and officers remain those designated in 23B.08 RCW. These 24 duties are not the enhanced duties of a trustee. The Washington Supreme Court recognized the 25 statute is inconsistent with the common law trust fund doctrine in Ballard Square

-14-

1 The Official Comments to chapter 23B.14 RCW at the time of enactment explain that 2 RCW 23B.14.050(2) makes clear that

3 chapter 14 dissolution does not have any of the characteristics of common law
4 dissolution, which treated corporate dissolution as analogous to the death of a natural 5 person and abated lawsuits, vested equitable title to corporate property in the 6 shareholders, imposed the fiduciary duty of the trustees on the directors, who had 7 custody of corporate assets, and revoked the authority of the registered agent. [RCW 8 23B.14.050(2)] expressly reverses all these common law attributes of dissolution and 9 makes clear that the rights, powers, and duties of shareholders, the directors, and the 10 registered agent are not affected at dissolution and that suits by or against the 11 corporation are not affected in any way.

12 Senate Journal, 51st Leg., Reg. Sess., app. At 3095 (Wash.1989).

13 Ballard Square, 158 Wash. 2d at 615, 146 P.3d at 920. The legislative history of RCW 23B.14.050
14 confirms the abolition of the common law trust fund doctrine by the statute.

15 ABC has failed to prove that the Defendants were fiduciaries under § 523(a)(4). The 16 Defendants were not “trustees,” a prerequisite for violation of the statute. ABC has failed to prove 17 its claim under § 523(a)(4).

18 III. 11 U.S.C. § 523 (a)(6)

19 ABC bases a cause of action on 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(6), alleging that the Defendants willfully
20 and maliciously injured ABC. The leading case applying § 523(a)(6) requires the claimant to prove 21 the actions complained of were “acts done with actual intent to cause injury.” Kawaauhau v. Geiger, 22 523 U.S. 57, 61 (1998). ABC must prove that the Defendants actually intended to harm ABC by 23 their actions or that their actions were objectively certain to harm ABC. Miller v. J.D. Abrams, Inc.
24 (In re Miller), 156 F.3d 598, 606 (5th Cir. 1998).

25 ABC cites a litany of Defendants’ actions which it contends supports its allegations under § 26 523(a)(6). The Court has already discussed at some length ABC’s allegations that the Defendants
27 incurred debt to ABC with no intention to pay. If proven these allegations might qualify under 28 §523(a)(6)(A). However, ABC has not proven that the Defendants incurred debt with no intention to pay.

ABC also cites dealings between South Park Holding, Ripley Lane, American Awning and

DECISION

July 22, 2011

1 the Defendants as grounds for relief under §523(a)(6). It appears that South Park Holding and Ripley
2 Lane d/b/a Closet Tailors, were limited liability companies in which Marsha McMahon Jones' father
3 held some interest. Based on the Moss Adams notes (¶ X 1 p.19), it appears that a note payable to 4 South Park by the Defendants was distributed to McMahons, and then gifted by them to the Jones as 5 part of the liquidation of South Park. Ripley Lane d/b/a Closet Tailors was also being liquidated
6 about this time. American Awning wrote off a $55,000.00 debt from Ripley Lane/Closet Tailors.
7 There is no evidence that this receivable from Closet Tailors, which was going out of business, was 8 collectible. There is no evidence to support the allegations that these actions were taken to 9 intentionally harm ABC or that the natural consequences of the actions were certain to harm ABC.

10 Likewise ABC alleges that American Awning made loans to Budget Blinds which were not 11 paid back. Admittedly these may have been unwise loans. Budget Blinds' balance sheet of 12 December 31, 2007 discloses assets of $81,371.52 with liabilities of $579,702.11. Unwise loans to 13 Budget Blinds do not equate with actions taken with the intent to harm ABC. Budget Blinds owed
14 nothing to ABC. The use of the proceeds from the sale of the three Budget Blinds franchises to pay 15 other creditors of Budget Blinds does not support ABC allegations.

16 ABC placed much emphasis on the fact that Marsha McMahon-Jones is well educated,
17 having received a MBA from a prestigious university. She was successful when working for a 18 number of large companies in the field of marketing and advertising and therefore ABC argues she 19 and her husband were knowledgeable and their business failures were part of a coordinated scheme
20 to cheat ABC. Unfortunately the recipients of MBA degrees are not necessarily endowed with wise
21 business judgment, the ability to manage organizations or the ability to keep coherent business
22 records pristine in observance of the tax code. If they were, our country would not be in the present
23 economic mess. The Defendants' failure of business judgment in trying to keep their high end
24 business afloat in a collapsing economy do not equate as acts taken with the intention to harm ABC
25 and their other creditors. Rather Defendants appear as people desperately attempting to salvage their 26 business and meet their numerous obligations. Unfortunately that is not always possible.

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 The Plaintiff has not proven its allegations that the Defendants intentionally harmed ABC in 2 violation of § 523(a)(6).

3 IV. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A)

4 ABC seeks to bar the Defendants' discharge relying on 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A). ABC
5 alleges that the Defendants, with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud ABC or the bankruptcy estate,
6 transferred or concealed Defendants' property within a year of their bankruptcy. As support of its 7 allegations, ABC relies on two checks drawn on AA&S's bank account and made payable to 8 Awnings By Design, one check for $10,000.00 on 6/9/09 and a second check for $5,000.00 on 9 7/9/09. The problem with this allegation is that the monies transferred were the property of AA&S, 10 the corporation, and not the property of the Defendants.

11 The Plaintiff in its approach to this case has treated Defendants' various business enterprises
12 as extensions of the Defendants themselves. It thus characterizes a transfer of AA&S's assets as a 13 transfer of Defendants' property. By implication ABC argues that the Court should disregard the 14 various different legal entities in which the Defendants have an interest while not specifically calling
15 for the Court to pierce the various corporate veils. The Court will examine the factual history of the 16 Defendants' various enterprises to assist analysis of this position.

17 T. Jones Enterprises, LLC., (TJE) was a Washington Limited Liability Company initially 18 filed with the state in 2000. Debtor Tommy Jones was the governing member. TJE was in the retail 19 shades and awning business and operated Budget Blind franchises at four different locations.
20 Marsha McMahon-Jones started a companion business specializing in custom shades and awnings
21 under the name American Awning and Shade. This business was incorporated in 2005. AA&S 22 operated its business out of one of the Budget Blind locations. Besides sharing locations they 23 occasionally shared in the use of employees and equipment. They kept separate books and bank
24 accounts. Tommy Jones provided operational assistance to AA&S while Marsha McMahon-Jones
25 focused on sales, her area of expertise. Both AA&S and the Budget Blinds operations ran into 26 economic difficulties in 2007.

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 These difficulties produced a change in the operation of the two entities. In the summer of 2 2007, Marsha McMahon-Jones left active participation in the day to day business of AA&S to start a
3 career as a realtor. Tommy Jones continued to run AA&S and the Budget Blind franchises. In the 4 beginning of 2008, three of the franchises were sold. In April 2008, T. Jones Enterprises, LLC., was 5 administratively dissolved. There is a suggestion in the working paper of Moss Adams that the 6 remaining Budget Blind franchise was to have merged into AA&S. (¶ X 1 p.29). There is no
7 evidence that this ever formally accomplished. However, AA&S and the remaining Budget Blind
8 franchise continued to operate out of the remaining location. AA&S and Budget Blinds continued to 9 have separate books and bank accounts.

10 In April of 2009, the State Department of Revenue placed a levy on AA&S's bank account,
11 AA&S's checks to ABC bounced, ABC quit supplying AA&S, and AA&S was administratively
12 dissolved. Budget Blinds continued to operate at the franchise location.

13 On April 30, 2009, Awnings By Design, LLC., (ABD), was filed with the State. It
14 commenced doing a custom window covering business in the Budget Blinds location. Tommy Jones
15 testified that because of difficulties involved in opening a bank account for ABD, for a time ABD
16 used AA&S's bank account to operate its business. Ultimately Tommy Jones transferred $10,000.00
17 out of the AA&S account to start an account for ABD. Subsequently another $5,000.00 was 18 transferred from the AA&S account to ABD. It is these transfers that ABC complains of in support
19 of their complaint. It is unclear whether this $15,000.00 was the product of ABD's business
20 activities or was from AA&S operations.

21 ABC argues that these dealings between the corporation AA&S and the limited liability
22 companies evidence a scheme to hide assets in hindrance of Defendants' creditors. Defendants 23 failure to strictly comply with statutes concerning orderly winding down of dissolved entities is not 24 commendable. Yet pristine compliance with those dissolution procedures is seldom found in the real
25 world. Those procedures are costly. The dissolved entities liabilities greatly exceeded their limited
26 assets which were not very liquid. The Defendants, with their own financial problems could ill

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 afford to finance the liquidation. The whole point of limited liability for failed business entities
2 would be lost if the officer, directors and owners had to individually finance the dissolution. The 3 Defendants had to live and they chose to try to continue in the shade and awning business in which 4 they were familiar and which hopefully might supply a living.

5 ABC sees Defendants' actions as evidence of intent to hinder, delay and defraud their 6 creditors and conceal their assets. The more probable explanation is that the Defendants were simply 7 doing the best that they could to survive in difficult times. The evidence fails to show the requisite
8 intent to support a violation of § 727(a)(2)(A), nor does it show that the property transferred was the 9 property of the Defendants.

10 ABC also alleges Defendants had substantial assets in ABD and Budget Blinds which were 11 not disclosed to the Court.

12 The Defendants' bankruptcy schedules in Schedule B disclose an interest in "Awnings by 13 Design NW, LLC., start up company in 5/2009," which is valued at $10,000.00. (¶ X 22 p.12). The 14 Defendants also list "Budget Blinds Inc., Debtor is franchisee. Debts exceed assets" and value this 15 asset as "$0.00." (¶ X 22 p.13).

16 ABC asserts that the "Debtors have substantial assets in the business of Awnings By Design 17 and Budget Blinds that have not been disclosed to the Court." (Doc. 26 pg. 20). ABC alleges that 18 Defendants have substantially undervalued the assets of these companies including their customer 19 lists and intellectual property.

20 ABC has provided no evidence to support these allegations. Budget Blinds' balance sheet of 21 12/31/2008 shows assets of $9,268.01 liabilities of $59,797.17. (Δ X 11 p.1). Budget Blinds'
22 balance sheet of 8/31/09, the month Defendants filed bankruptcy shows assets of $12,877.11 and 23 liabilities of $47,982.06. (Δ X 12 p.1). Nor has ABC provided evidence as to actual value of the 24 allegedly undervalued customer lists and intellectual property.

25 The evidence before the Court does not support ABC's allegation against Defendants based 26 on § 727(a)(2)(A).

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 V. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3)

2 ABC bases its next cause of action on 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(3), alleging Defendants concealed
3 or failed to keep books and records from which their financial condition might be ascertained.

4 The tenor of ABC's complaint, as most recently articulated in its post hearing brief (Dec 26
5 p.20-27), is that the Defendants were slow and not forth right in responding to Plaintiffs discovery
6 requests and their actions amount to intentional concealment. If proved, such action might support
7 Plaintiff's complaint.

8 ABC complains that the Defendants did not produce all of the documents requested at their 9 11/4/09 2004 examination, that every other page was omitted from the Defendants' personal bank
10 statements, when this was remedied, the Defendants failed to provide copies of their personal bank
11 statements for the months of March, April and May 2008, failed to adequately answer Plaintiff's
12 August 10, 2010 interrogatories, and failed to timely produce bank records for AA&S and T. Jones
13 Enterprises, LLC. (Budget Blinds), failed to produce the Moss Adams working papers related to the 14 Defendants and to provide timely access to Defendants' computers. ABC alleges that these failures
15 by Defendants constitute evidence of Defendants' intentional actions to conceal information 16 regarding their financial condition in violation of §727(a)(3).

17 Defendants respond that they thought they had produced everything requested, when advised
18 of the missing papers they inadvertently missed in copying they produced them, the bank statements
19 for the three months were inadvertently missed and ultimately supplied, the records of AA&S and 20 Budget Blinds were made available by providing access to the applicable computer and delay in 21 doing so was lack of competence to unlock the materials stored on the computer. They note that all 22 this information was provided to the Plaintiff prior to the time of trial. Defendants contend that they 23 in good faith attempted to comply with the discovery requests and the difficulties encountered were 24 unintentional and innocent on their part.

25 ABC's above set out grievances are discovery complaints. The Federal Rules of Civil 26 Procedure Rules 26 thru 37 provides for the handling of discovery disputes. These disputes are

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 generally best handled in the pretrial period as opposed asserted at time of trial. This gives the trial
2 court the option of compelling compliance with the discovery rules, and fashioning any sanctions so
3 as to appropriately remedy the breach. The Plaintiff has not availed itself of the opportunity to deal
4 with these discovery matters pursuant to discovery rules. Rather it attempts to convert alleged 5 procedural discovery infractions into statutory violations of § 727(a)(3) and bar Defendants'
6 discharge. Although that might be appropriate in some circumstances, it fails in the circumstances of 7 this case.

8 The relevant information sought was provided in sufficient time prior to the trial to allow the 9 Plaintiff to prepare its case, admittedly causing some stress and hardship in the process but not 10 significantly restricting Plaintiff's ability to prove its case. The Defendants' explanations of the 11 reasons for their tardy performance are more probable than Plaintiff's contention Defendants'
12 performance is the result of intentional stonewalling. A review of the parties email correspondence
13 on the matters (¶ X 29) reveals the typical difficulties of parties attempting to comply with discovery
14 requests. It does not support a finding of intentional noncompliance by the Defendants.

15 ABC has failed to prove that the Defendants have concealed or falsified their books in 16 violation of § 727(a)(3).<sup>1</sup>

17 VI. 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4)(A)

18 ABC bases its final cause of action on 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(4), alleging Defendants knowingly 19 and fraudulently made a false oath or account in connection with the case. It alleges that the 20 Defendants' income figures reported in their "Statement of Financial Affairs," (SOFA) (¶ X 22
21

---

22 <sup>1</sup>In support of its § 727(a)(3) allegations, ABC also challenged the accuracy of AA&S' and 23 Budget Blinds' books. It asserts that the payment of some of the Defendants' personal expenses by 24 AA&S and Budget Blinds should have characterized as personal income of the Defendants rather than 25 as reimbursement for business expenses. These allegations will be treated in the next section of this 26 opinion dealing with § 727(a)(4).

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 p.49), and in their "Statement of Monthly Income," (SOMI) (§ X 22 p.62), are fraudulently false.

2 A. SOFA 2007 and 2008 Figures

3 The figures included in the Defendants' SOFA match the exact numbers reported for 2007
4 and 2008 in the books of AA&S (Δ X 4 p.1 & p.36, Δ X 5 p.1 & p.29) and of Budget Blinds (Δ X 7
5 p.1 & p. 63; Δ X 8 p.1 & p.24). The Plaintiff argues these figures should be higher , because income
6 was improperly characterized as reimbursement of business expense. This argument is based on the 7 testimony of Mr. Hutching, an accountant. The Defendants dispute his analysis claiming that the 8 characterization as reimbursement of business expenses was proper. This is a legitimate dispute
9 between the parties. It does not support the Plaintiff's position that the Defendants fraudulently 10 misrepresented these numbers.

11 B. Defendants' SOFA 2009 Figures

12 1. Budget Blinds

13 The evidence concerning the 2009 Budget Blinds figures present a different case. The 14 Defendants' figures do not exactly coincide with the figures contained in the Budget Blinds' books.

15 Defendants' "Statement of Financial Affairs" (SOFA) disclosed the Defendants received
16 $14,700.00 from Budget Blinds in the period January 2009 thru July 31, 2009. (§ X 22 p.49).
17 Budget Blinds' "Profit and Loss Detail" for January 2009 thru August 2009, reflects $11,700.00 paid
18 to Marsha McMahon-Jones under the category "Owner's Draw." (Δ X 9 p. 10). This same 19 document reflects a number of deductions to this accounting category identified as "offsets..." The 20 result is that as of the end of the period the "Owner's Draw" account showed a negative balance of "- 21 1893.12." Budget Blinds' "Balance Sheet Detail" for the same period shows withdraws designated 22 as "Owner's Draws" totally $13,500.00 (Δ X 12 pgs. 1-9). Neither the Budget Blinds Profit and 23 Loss Figures nor its Balance Sheet agree with the Defendants' SOFA figure, yet the Court can not 24 find that this is the result of fraudulent misstatement.

25 2. American Awnings and Shade

26 The Defendants' SOFA discloses Defendants' income from AA&S for the period January

27 DECISION

28 July 22, 2011

1 2009 thru July 31, 2009, at $16,476.69. (¶ X 22 p.49). AA&S' "Profit & Loss" and "Profit and Loss
2 Detail" show "owner's draws" for the period of $61,369.88. (Δ X 6 p.1 & p.12). These figures
3 differ from the figures in the SOFA.

4 AA&S "Profit & Loss Detail" dealing with the period January through August 2009 is a
5 confusing document. (Δ X 6 p.11-12). It is clear that the Defendants did not have access to it when 6 they were preparing their bankruptcy. The document refers to the transactions which took place after 7 August 6, 2009, the date Defendants filed the SOFA along with their other initial bankruptcy
8 pleadings. It bears the notation "8:20pm 01/23/11," presumably referring to the date it was prepared.

9 The information contained in the "Profit & Loss Detail" is also confusing. It references
10 checks to Marsha McMahon-Jones in the period of January 14, 2009, through June 10, 2009, of 11 $41,395.00, including an item dated June 10, 2009, for $2000.00 with the memo entry "void." It
12 also contains June 9, 2009, to Tommy Jones for $10,000.00 with the memo entry "open abd acc..."
13 Arguably this references money which was generated by the operations of Awning By Design since
14 April 30, 2009, and which accumulated in the AA&S account prior to opening of ABD's own
15 account. The Detail also includes numerous adjustments to this "owner draw" account marked 16 "offset to mov..." and "Accounts Rec..." which reduced the balance in "owner's draw" account.
17 This balance was enhanced by an entry with the memo notations "adj for xfr of c..." and "Capital
18 Stock" 77,386.95 and another in the 34,754.98 with notations "adj for xfrs fr..." and "Capital Stock."
19 As a result of these last referenced entries the "owner's draw" account showed a positive balance of 20 $61,369.88. But for those entries the account would have shown a negative balance in the range of 21 $51,000.00. ABC would have the Court simply consider the withdrawals as Defendants' income and 22 disregard all of the negative adjustments to the account. The Court declines to do this.

23 AA&S accounting during the last months of its existence is understandably chaotic. AA&S
24 suffered a tax levy on its bank account, it lost its principal supplier, it was administratively dissolved
25 by the State and its bank account was used as a vehicle to provide banking for the start up ABD. The 26 Court can not on the basis of this confusing record find that they fraudulently misrepresented their

2 C. Statement of Monthly Net Income

3 Defendants' "Statement of Monthly Net Income" (§ X 22 p.62) reflects that Marsha
4 McMahon-Jones received no net income in the six months prior to the filing of bankruptcy. This is 5 consistent with her testimony that she was working as a relator at the time and that she had no
6 income. Tommy Jones, the joint debtor lists income of $24,141.16. The Debtors' SOFA reports
7 gross income from AA&S of $16,476.69, and from Budget Blinds of $14,700.00. (§ X 22 p.49).
8 These figures are consistent with the evidence in the case and not fraudulent misstatements of the 9 facts.

10 ABC has not proven that the Defendants have knowingly and fraudulently made a false oath 11 in this case.

12 CONCLUSION

13 The Plaintiff ABC has failed to meet its burden of proof that the Defendants Marsha
14 McMahon-Jones and Tommy Jones violated the provisions of 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)(2),(4) and (6).
15 Upon entry of a discharge in the Defendants' case, their obligations to ABC will be discharged.

16 The Plaintiff ABC has failed to meet is burden of proof that the Defendants Marsha
17 McMahon-Jones and Tommy Jones violated the provisions of 11 U.S.C. § 727(a)(2)(A); § 727(a)(3); 18 and § 727(a)(4)(A). The Defendants are entitled to a discharge in their case.

19 A judgment will be entered in this adversary proceeding in favor of the Defendants Marsha 20 McMahon-Jones and Tommy Jones and dismissing Plaintiff's complaint.
